bought and rented. Approximately 25 additional laborers are being brought in daily [REDACTED] by a Station bus to work under Station supervision. Six trucks with crews from commercial pulpwood firms are working at no cost to the Station. A contract has been granted to a commercial tree service firm to remove many dangerous tree limbs which threaten the safety of personnel in the quarters area and along roads, and which threaten power lines.

It is expected that cleanup operations will be concluded in about one month. Intermittent power outages may be expected until all limbs hanging over power lines are removed. Vehicular traffic is possible now on all but 12 miles of roads, and a full scale effort should remove all signs of the storm by 24 March.

2. Letters of Guidance to Full-Time Academic Students

Letters have gone out to all Agency employees enrolled in full-time academic programs providing guidance on the present publicity given the Agency. The letters contain the changes recommended by the DD/S.

3. Armed Forces Staff College

[REDACTED] one of the four students at the Armed Forces Staff College, called recently to inquire whether his proposed research topic was approved, and to tell us how well the initial period [REDACTED] had gone. He said that several fellow students sought him out the first [REDACTED] research topic, "Types of Information of Interest to Military Commanders Available Through Overt Broadcasting," was approved by OTR.

4. Trends and Highlights

Support Services Review: Trends and Highlights #4 began 23 February with an enrollment of 56 students.

5. The Orientation to Intelligence for CTs

The Orientation to Intelligence for CTs began on 27 February with 91 CTs -- the largest number in the history of the course. Presentations on the Clandestine Services have been upgraded and Mr. Carl Duckett has been added to the DDS&T part of the program. A full day will be devoted to policy formulation and its execution. Originally there was only one lecture on this topic, that on the NSC. In addition to a presentation by the Department of State, two additional talks, one on the USIA by Mr. Charles Vetter and one on the Department of Defense by Colonel Abbott Greenleaf, Military Assistant to the Deputy Secretary of Defense, will be given.
